General summary

Iris Park Commons is an Assisted Living with Memory Care facility located within a continuum of care campus owned by Episcopal Homes. In addition to Iris Park Commons, the campus includes senior housing apartments, a transitional care unit, hospice and two skilled nursing facilities, The Gardens and Episcopal Church Home. Episcopal Homes also owns and operates a children's day care facility on the campus.

Geographic information:

The Episcopal Homes campus is located in St. Paul, Minnesota, the state capital. St. Paul is a metropolitan area located in Ramsey County. St. Paul is the second largest city in the state, with a population of 311,527 as of the 2020 census. St. Paul and Minneapolis are commonly known as the "Twin Cities."

Iris Park Commons is located in a primarily residential neighborhood, but is close to retail stores, leisure activities, parks and churches.

Number of people served:

Iris Park Commons is a licensed assisted living facility and is licensed to serve 70 residents. They are currently serving 58 residents. Five residents have an Elderly Waiver, and one resident has a CADI waiver. The rest use private pay or other funding sources.

Customized living provider standards/qualifications

Licensure requirements and other state regulations for customized living services clearly distinguish these services/settings from institutional licensure or regulations.

Customized living settings must have an assisted living license through the Minnesota Department of Health and meet all of the requirements and standards of the assisted living licensure, MN Statutes, section 144G or meet an exemption under MN Statutes, section 256S.20, subd. 1. Customized living services provide an individualized package of regularly scheduled health-related and supportive services provided to a person who resides in a qualified setting with an assisted living license.

Customized living service definitions that support the setting requirements

Customized living (CL) and 24-hour CL services include component services designed to meet the person's assessed needs and goals. Individualized CL services may include supervision, home care aide tasks (e.g., assistance with activities of daily living), home health aide task (e.g., delegated nursing tasks), home management tasks, meal preparation and service, socialization, assisting enrollees with arranging meetings and appointments, assisting with money management, assisting participants with scheduling medical and social services and arranging for or providing transportation. If socialization is provided, it must be part of the service plan, related to established goals and outcomes and not diversional or recreational in nature.

For more details about the component services, including what is covered and distinctions between each see the following resource on the CBSM:

Minnesota's Community Based Services Manual (CBSM) provides the following requirements for customized living services:

The president/chief executive officer (CEO) and the chief operating officer (COO) have oversight of the entire campus, and the senior director of skilled nursing and assisted living operations report to them. The assisted living management structure is separate from the skilled nursing facilities. Iris Park Commons has an assisted living director, who supervises their director of nursing, the nurses and the home health aides in the assisted living building. The skilled nursing facilities each have their own administrator, director of nursing, nurses and home health care aides at each facility.	Compliant

The facility's accessible bus is used for community group activities, as well as for individual rides. Some residents still drive, and others take Metro Mobility, which is a shared ride public transportation service. The Metro Transit city bus has routes that residents can use. A carshare service called "HourCar" can be accessed as well. Families often transport residents, and a nearby church has volunteers who will help people get to church or run errands. Residents are told about these options when they move in and whenever they request assistance with rides. Any staff will assist with arranging transportation for residents or direct them to someone who can. The front desk can also assist residents with transportation. Narrative:

Iris Park Commons provides customized living services in a space that is distinct from the space used by the two skilled nursing facilities. Customized living services are provided in a building separated from the skilled nursing facilities by doors. Signage throughout the campus clearly identifies which building you are in. The setting has a separate entrance with signage and a dedicated parking area separate from the skilled nursing facilities. During the tour, when moving from one building to another, it was observed that the assisted living building is distinct from the skilled nursing facilities.

Prong 1 and Prong 2 settings

Meaningful distinction between the facility and HCBS setting

States must submit strong evidence that the setting presumed institutional has the characteristics of a HCBS setting and not an institutional setting.

HCBS characteristics

This section is a summary of the individual HCBS characteristics required in the HCBS rule. The findings for each characteristic are identified through the setting documentation, on-site observations and interviews.

HCBS Rule requirement	Compliance determination

During resident interviews, when asked, “Did you choose to live here? Were you offered other options?” one resident said, “I absolutely chose this place. I didn’t need to see any other options.” She stated that the case worker told her there were other options, but she wasn’t interested. Another resident stated she was living temporarily in another facility nearby and was about to be discharged. She stated, “I graduated to being able to live in an assisted living, and this one was close to the people who support me, so I took it right away.” When asked if she was offered other places, she said yes but she already knew she wanted to live here.	Compliant

The option for outside providers is discussed with the resident while reviewing the Bill of Rights before they move in, and at any time a person states that they are interested in finding a new provider. During resident interviews, when asked if they had a choice of who provides their services, one resident reported that “I see my own doctor. He knows me.” This physician is not one of providers that works directly with Iris Park Commons. She went on to say, “Besides, it gets me out and about and I get to have lunch with my son after appointments.” Another resident stated she chooses to use the services that come right to the building. She stated, “It’s nice, especially in the winter when I don’t like going outside for appointments.” She said, “I’m not picky when it comes to that, but if I didn’t like one (person) the staff would help me find someone else.” During site visit, another home care provider’s van was observed in the parking lot.

During resident interviews, residents stated that they can get around their units and the building easily. Observed shower chairs, grab bars and other accessibility equipment while in resident apartments. One resident uses a walker and when I asked if it's hard to navigate the building, she said, "No, not at all, I can get around easy, even with my walker." Railings were observed in hallways as well for people to hold on to while they walk.

An Individual Abuse Prevention Plan (IAPP) is developed from the results of these assessments. IAPPs contain information on why each resident requires a secured unit for their safety and wellbeing, as well as the plan to implement the supports. All RUATS and IAPPs for residents in Katy’s Cottage were reviewed. Residents go out into the community with friends they have met at Iris Park Commons. They go to movies, out to eat, shopping, beauty shops, church services, walks around the community and other activities that are organized by the residents themselves. Families and friends come to pick up residents for special occasions such as birthdays, weddings, graduations, baby showers and other celebrations.

Staff are trained on this resident right during their orientation, and annually thereafter. There is a section in the staff orientation training on the importance of keeping people engaged in meaningful activities. Interviews with the assisted living director and other staff members reported that the person who coordinates activities has worked there for a very long time. The assisted living director and staff stated that activity coordinators know residents well and uses their interests to plan activities.

During resident interviews, one person shared that she likes to do some activities, and said, "I could do more activities if I want to, there is so many choose from. But I am more of a homebody. I like to stay in my apartment and do crafts. There are some activities I do enjoy doing with the rest of the residents, so I check the calendar every day." Another resident stated, "I like doing activities in the community, especially since they provide transportation. I like to go shopping." One resident stated, "I have contacts outside of this place that I like to see."

Residents reported that they get calendars for each month's activities delivered to their apartments, and that calendars are "posted all over the building to let us know what's going on." One person also reported that the activity coordinator and other staff will come around and remind people of activities so they can join in if desired. Residents knew where they needed to go to find the sign-ups for activities that require advance notice of attendance. Residents stated that the activities person is “the best,” and that she “gets what we like to do because she asks us.” Staff confirmed during interviews that activity coordinator goes around regularly to remind residents about activities that day.

One resident stated that she is so excited about “Writer’s Group.” She shared that one of the stories she plans to present at the next group is about her dog as a child. She said she is proud to be a part of the group.

The community also visits Iris Park Commons. They have a bistro that community members, as well as residents and families can utilize. The campus holds a big block party every year that people from the community and residents attend. The residents talked about how much they like the intergenerational program because they get to see the kids in the on-campus childcare center Kinder Village. The assisted living director describes the program as “Our ‘villagers’ (the children) and their ‘grandfriends’ (residents) have a mutual relationship where grandfriends teach our villagers that wrinkles and walkers are not scary, and our villagers remind our grandfriends that there is still so much life to live. We have daily intergenerational programs/activities together such as planting flowers, personalized bingo (“Find the grandfriend’s picture” or “Find the villager’s picture” on the bingo board), birthday parties, dances, and more. It’s always a treat to hear the little voices making a ruckus and to see our residents smiling and laughing along.”

Onsite activities include swimming in the pool at the setting, exercise and wellness classes, arts and crafts, card and board games, movies in the onsite movie theatre, religious services, Bingo and Karaoke. Another of the favorite activities mentioned during resident interviews was pet visits. Residents said they loved seeing and petting the animals. Residents were observed participating in different activities throughout the campus. Some were inside, playing cards, while others were outside enjoying the duck pond with friends. We observed residents leaving and coming back from walks. We observed activity calendars posted throughout the setting. During resident interviews, we observed these calendars in their apartments.
